Teenage MarriagelDropouts
ISBN: 0-374-37140-7
In this short, moving, fast-paced and often humorous story, 16-year-old Raven Jefferson, an unwed teenage mother and high school dropout “existing” in the housing projects of Brooklyn, is bored with her daily routine and fears the prospect of facing low-paying, dead-end jobs. Encouraged by her college-graduate sister, her mother—herself an unwed mother—and her likeable, loud-mouthed best friend, Aisha—who is expecting her second child and has no real future—Raven enters the “Spelt Success” program.

Before dropping out of high school in her senior year, Raven was a good student—even a bookish one—who planned to attend college herself. Winning the program’s spelling bee is her way of out the projects, since the prize is an eight-week college preparatory course and four-year college scholarship.

Readers will admire and sympathize with determined Raven, laughing and cringing at Aisha’s antics, and wondering if Raven and the well-meaning and guilt-ridden boy who fathered her child will have a future together. However, most of all, readers will be left with hope!

Zazoo by Richard Mosher
Vietnam War/Family Relationships
Clarion Books, 2001, 256 pp., $16.00
ISBN: 0-618-13534-0
Almost 14 years old, Zazoo is really “French on the inside” and “Vietnamese on the outside.” Adopted by an older WWII French war hero after a land mine killed her natural parents, Zazoo has never questioned anything about her life with her new father, Grand Pierre. She knows that her father fought in WWII, but not in Vietnam. Suddenly, a strange boy riding a bicycle into her village one morning asks a question that causes her to change her views of the people she’s known all her life. As Zazoo struggles to reconcile the actions of her friends and family during WWII, the Vietnam War, and their life now, she reveals three love stories at differing stages, one of them her own.

Woven in and around the story is the healing property of nature and art. Zazoo and Grand Pierre’s shared affinity for water and poetry pulls them together to form a tight and loving bond that enables her to cope with her father’s eventual advancing age and memory loss. This book’s tender strength rests in how the author, Richard Mosher, manages to take seemingly unconnected incidents and interweave them into one meaningful and beautiful whole. As Zazoo discovers, the past is never over; it simply informs and colors the present and the future.

Til Tomorrow by John Donahue
Growing-up/Historical Fiction
Farrar, Straus, & Giroux, 2001, 165 pp., $16.00
ISBN: 0-374-37580-1
The son of an army officer, 12-year-old Terrence “O.B.” O’Brien has logged a lot of miles in his young life. The family’s latest move has taken them to 1961 France, where they must begin to build a brand new life.

O. B. is a self-conscious adolescent who longs for the support of a peer group. In his quest for meaningful friendships, O. B. finds himself caught between many worlds—that of the army base and the surrounding village, and between a very popular set of local boys, and a faithful, but unconventional companion, whom he fears may tarnish his unblemished reputation.

Set against the backdrop of the building of the Berlin Wall just after the close of WW II, Til Tomorrow situates O. B.’s personal struggles within the context of an ever-evolving and often frightening world situation. Readers will relate to O. B.’s struggles, as well as those of the other well-developed characters in this engaging read.

Fresh off the case of The Ghost of Fossil Glen, 12-year-old Allie Nichols finds herself summoned again to come to the aid of a ghost. When Allie’s teacher assigns an interview for Elders’ Day, she is compelled by a handsome ghost to talk with Mrs. Hobbs - the scarred, shivelved and obviously evil cafeteria lady. During the interview, Allie catches a glimpse of compassion emanating from this strange woman, but is interrupted when suddenly, her reporter’s notepad spontaneously combusts and the school is evacuated. As more unexpected and unexplained fires result in public panic, Allie and Mrs. Hobbs are plunged into a sea of trouble.

Amidst this turmoil, Allie’s relationship with her old friend Dub becomes more complicated as she struggles with feelings of jealousy. With Dub’s help, and then with the help of her father and her little brother, Allie learns that appearances can often be deceiving and that ghosts cannot always be trusted.

Cynthia DeFelice makes frequent references to the prequel The Ghost of Fossil Glen, so readers might enjoy reading that book first. Nonetheless, DeFelice’s characters are warm, thoughtful, and courageous, and her language simply and easily understood, conveying a sense of suspense that will leave young readers eager to follow Allie on any adventure.

A Face First by Priscilla Cummings
Frances Foster Books, 2001, 245 pp., $18.00
ISBN: 0-374-37397-3

Young adult readers will enjoy following Liv from New York to California as she moves from a life with Grandmother to one with a father she has never known. Author Hobbs tells of Liv’s “growth to awareness” story beginning with a description of “life with Gran.” When Liv was born, her mother died and her father gave her to her grandmother. The readers meet Liv just as her grandmother dies. Suddenly, Liv realizes that her father, Mark Tapert, is the only family she now has, and she knows she must now go to California and live with him and his new girlfriend, Samantha. During the story, Liv and Samantha form a friendship, but her father remains very distant. And above all, Liv can’t forgive him for abandoning her when her mother died. Then, one day, life comes full circle when she finds herself literally with her father’s life in her hands.

Hobbs creates a realistic memory for her readers as they watch Liv determine her father’s fate. It is an engaging read for adolescents who are struggling with their own tenuous family relationships.

A Face First by Priscilla Cummings

When Kelley Brennan awakens in the hospital burn center, unable to feel her fingers on her face, she knows that her life has been changed forever. In A Face First, Cummings describes the physical rehabilitation Kelley endures, culminating with her leaving the hospital wearing a plastic mask.

The novel also portrays Kelley’s emotional turmoil – from seeing herself in the mirror, to accepting the mask, to forgiving her mother for running the red light and causing the accident that cost Kelley several fingers and half her face. Through the weeks of skin grafts, dressing changes, physical therapy, visits, letters, and phone calls from family and friends, Kelley grows to accept herself, realizing she’s still Kelley on the inside.

This is a well-told story about a very real-to-life trauma; it reminds us that all of us, no matter how strong and full of life, are only a moment away from losing everything. Young readers will enjoy the strong emphasis on the power of family and friends to rescue those in need.

All the Way Home by Patricia Reilly Griff
Delacorte, 2001, 169 pp., $15.95
ISBN: 0-385-32209-7

Mariel, a sixth grader, works hard at not letting her polio-deformed leg define her. She lives happily in Brooklyn with her adoptive mother, although she yearns to know the whereabouts of her biological mother. Suddenly, though, Brick, the son of a family friend, is living with Mariel and her family, because Brick’s parents can no longer support themselves on their family farm. At first, Mariel fears Brick but is gradually surprised, and pleased when Brick doesn’t consider her different because of her “damaged” leg. In turn, Mariel sees the sadness and embarrassment beneath Brick’s pretend bravado and indifference to his parents’ poverty.

Brick’s demeanor belies his loneliness, and soon, he announces he must return to his home, Windy Hill, to help his parents and elderly neighbors harvest their apple crop. Coincidentally, Mariel wants to return to Windy Hill where as a child she was hospitalized when she contracted polio. There, she hopes to locate her mother.

Mariel’s determination helps both her and Brick get what they want as together, they learn the power of strength and love to come from unexpected places. All the Way Home is a gentle story of the unfolding of a special friendship, the building of trust, and the sharing of vulnerabilities.

A Group of One by Rachna Gilmore
Henry Holt, 2001, 184 pp., Unspecified price

Tara Mehta is made to feel an outcast in her social studies class when her teacher, Mr. Tolly, asks what her native language is. Tara was born and reared in Canada and resents the implication that she is somehow “foreign.” The intensity of these feelings increases when Tara’s grandmother comes to visit from India. As Tara begins to learn about her grandmother’s youth and adolescence, she gains not only an understanding of her cultural heritage as a child of India, but she becomes even more determined to confront the implied racism of her teacher and some of her classmates.

A Group of One explores a culture not often represented in young adult literature. The information about the Quit India Movement and other historical references make this book a natural tie into world history classes. Readers will appreciate how the issues are confronted with brutal honesty. Above all, they will enjoy reading Tara’s up and down experiences of adolescence, from first love, to embarrassing parents, and more.

One True Friend by Joyce Hanson

After his mother and father die, Amir is placed in many different foster homes. But now he has landed in a good place. Grace and Alvin Smith are good foster parents, but Amir has trouble opening up to them. In addition, he is living with his younger brother Ronald.

Still, Amir is troubled because he cannot find his other brothers and sisters. Luckily, in the end, Amir finds someone to whom he can truly open his heart: Doris, a friend who lives in his old Bronx neighborhood.

Much of One True Friend is the exchange of letters between Amir and Doris, sharing all of their feelings and concerns about their respective environments. Eventually, Amir and his foster parents, the Smiths, are successful in locating the rest of the family, thus providing another problem for Amir: with whom should he live?

Novelist Jane Hanson provides strong characters and a letter writing format that is carried out effectively. Above all, the plot moves because the reader becomes engrossed in the characters’ revealing and engaging letters. This is a companion book to The Gift-Giver and Yellow Bird and Me, and it is best suited to the younger student in the young adult range.

Anne Frank and Me by Cherie Bennett and Jeff Gottesfeld
Roussan Publishers, 2000, 141 pp., $5.95

The premise that Edward de Vere, the seventeenth Earl of Oxford, wrote the works of William Shakespeare is demonstrated through the adventures of modern day teen Perin Willoughby. During a class trip to the Globe Theater, she loses her way, and suddenly travels through time and enters Elizabethan England. Unconcerned and unfazed, Perin finds herself auditioning at the original Globe, becoming an Elizabethan actress, and surprisingly, delivering de Vere’s plays to Shakespeare, himself, who subsequently pens in his name on those now famous plays.

Although historically implausible, younger readers will enjoy Perin’s intrepid escapades and her rambunctious impressions of her surroundings. Yet, Perin is a narrator, rather than a character, and the Elizabethan era and its people are depicted solely by her slanty, less than sophisticated attitude.

Nevertheless, when Perin returns to contemporary time, and discovers that her textbooks have credited de Vere’s writings, she realizes the hidden purpose to her fanciful adventure. In conclusion, an author’s note asserts the validity of de Vere’s authorship, but as Perin’s experiences fail to conclude credible and objective sources, readers have scant reason to believe that anyone but Shakespeare wrote the great plays.

The Wish by Gail Carson Levine
HarperCollins, 2000, 197 pp., $15.95
ISBN: 0-06-027900-1

Wilma Sturtz, an eighth grader, feels rejected and ignored after her two friends move. She has trouble making new friends, until one day she gives an unusual elderly woman her seat on the subway. Impressed by Wilma’s manners, the old woman asks young Wilma “if she could have anything, what would she want?” And then, just as suddenly, she grants Wilma her wish: to be the most popular kid at Claverford, her exclusive, private school. Instantly, Wilma is the center of attention. Every girl wants to be her friend, and every boy wants to take her the graduation night dance. Wilma, though, dreads graduation, because that is the day this wonderful “wish” ends. In the end, though, Wilma learns to accept herself for who she is, and not because of the ‘magic spell.’

Preteens will enjoy this story, which explores the real meaning of popularity, and makes it clear that friendship can never be forced. Above all, it taps into the deep-seated desire of every preteen to be liked and accepted.

Beatnic Rutabgas From Beyond the Stars by Quentin Dodd
Farrar, Straus, & Giroux, 2001, 216 pp., $17.00
ISBN: 0-374-30515-3

Walter Nutria, bored with high school, enters the spaceship that suddenly has mysteriously dropped to Earth. Little does he know, though, that he has been sought out by the Lirgonians, aliens dressed like middle-aged men in footie pajamas, to be their commander in a war against the Wotwots, who look like rutabagas.

The Wotwots have had the same idea, however, and recruit Walter’s friend Yselle Meriden as their commander.

Neither wins. Instead, the two warring alien parties, the Lirgonians and the Wotwots, end up with their spaceships stuck together, and they have to go for help. As Walter and Yselle try to convince the space aliens they have no need to fight, the Space Mice from Galaxy Nine steal the stuck spaceships, and the Wotwots and the Lirgonians have to team up together to get them back.

This book won’t appeal to the general reader, but the sophisticated, lighthearted reader who enjoys science fiction – of all sorts – will enjoy the humor in this crazy, fanciful story.

A Diamond in the Dust by Carla Johnson
Dial Books, 2001, 197 pp., $17.90
ISBN: 0-8037-2511-6

The coal mines kill, and Katy’s father, brother, and boyfriend are all deep in the mines everyday. Yet, 16-year-old Katy wants more, and her teacher, Miss Maplewhite, and her brother, Tim, see her potential to be an educated and successful woman. In the early 1900s in Illinois, though, women, including Katy’s mother, married young, had children, and waited every day in fear of the siren that cuts through the sky, shrieking death of their coal miner husbands.

Katy inspires readers as she struggles to break away from traditional expectations to achieve new dreams. Teenage readers especially will connect with Katy as they themselves search for ways to become who they want to be in the face of expectations from society, their family, and their friends.

The characters in this book – from Katy’s stoic mother to the young, arrogant boss at the coal mine – are vivid and believable in their honest struggles with a changing world.

What Became of Her by M. E. Kerr
HarperCollins, 2000, 244 pp., $15.95
ISBN: 0-06-028435-8

Serenity is a small town where everyone knows each other. Rosalind Slaymaster, a wealthy eccentric, returns to Serenity with her leather doll companion Peale and her teenage niece Julie to get revenge on those that wronged her in the past.

As a teenager, young Rose was taunted for her stutter, her innocence, her work at the Dare funeral home, and her mentally handicapped father. As the returning Rosalind Slaymaster, she is tough and demanding – even taunting her teenage daughter, Julie, someone she has adopted to keep her life-size doll company.

Once in town, a Edgar Tobbit befriends Julie when his mother is asked by Mrs. Slaymaster to do the astrology chart. Through Edgar, Julie is introduced to Neal Craft. Together, the three of them have a close and special relationship. Soon, Edgar realizes a connection between Neal’s family and Mrs. Slaymaster. The result is Julie’s desire for revenge on her mean-spirited adoptive mother.

Fans of Kerr will recognize the familiar themes in the struggles between the haves and the have-nots, the interwoven stories of two generations, and the cruelty of teens to their peers.

Although it's been two months since their father's fatal car accident, Ricky Gordon and his little brother, Matt, are still haunted by memories of violent beatings and loud, hurtful rants. And it doesn't help that the kids at school, as well as the whole town, will not let Ricky forget that the Gordon name is bad news. To avoid all the taunting and fighting after school and on the bus, Ricky takes to the road as a distance runner each morning and afternoon.

Although Ricky realizes he cannot run away from his past, the strength he finds within himself, during his long treks, helps him understand that he need not live his life under the ghost of his father's dark shadow. The disturbing flashback scenes of family violence are tempered with riveting accounts of long distance running through the Maine countryside. Finally, the author's beautifully crafted descriptions of character and setting make up for some less than authentic sounding dialogue.

Casey Butterfield is 13 years old, in seventh grade, and his life is going rapidly downhill. His parents are divorced, and his mother and sister have moved to another state. His father comes home at night, and drinks himself into either a rage, or just plain stupor. To help matters, Casey finds solace in his good friends Oscar and Tara, but his father's ugly and drunken behavior is terribly threatening to his friendships. To his rescue comes his Aunt Jolie, who wants to arrange an intervention to confront Casey's troubled father with his destructive behavior. Casey isn't sure that's the right thing to do.

Above all, Casey feels trapped, and he sees no viable way to deal with his problems. With the adults around him offering conflicting advice, Casey has to find his own path through his difficulties.

This is a book that deals with alcoholism and dysfunctional family relationships in a clear, strong, and realistic way. Raising the Shades is not only readable and entertaining in its own right, but it also offers bibliotherapeutic value for trained teachers and counselors.

Riley, Kate, Stan, Mary, Clair, Sam, and Sharon – are all the main characters except Sharon. That's because Sharon is Sharon, Vermont, where the 4th of July parade takes 15 minutes to go the three blocks through town. The town where Riley and his widowed mom move to live in his grandfather's old and falling down home. It also the town that has NOTHING except a drunken war hero, Stan, and a vegetarian conscientious objector, Sam, an old high school friend of his mother's.

Riley is resentful of Sam, especially when he finds out that Sam is a pacifist who refused to fight in the Vietnam War. Sam has a hard time accepting Riley's resentment. Riley is pulled against understanding why Sam, the draft dodger, is as he is, and tolerated by the village folk, while gentle Stan, the town drunk, is shunned. In fact, everything in this nothing place seems to go against Riley, even his Civil War hero great, great, great grandfather who was on the wrong side at Gettysburg. Eventually, Reilly develops an avid interest in the Vietnam War, and begrudgingly develops a relationship with Sam, though he cannot accept what Sam did.

This is a coming-of-age story with the characters living through and beyond the Vietnam War, and its ensuing years of political unrest.

Autumn believes she has the perfect life on small Douglas Island, where her intimate relationships with the weather, the landscape and the island's few inhabitants are deftly described by novelist Monte Killingsworth. Although her mother works on a larger nearby island, and is only home on weekends, she and her father are very close.

Now, that she is 14 years old, Autumn's father decides they should all move to the larger island, presumably so she can have more educational opportunities. As Autumn fights to stay on Douglas Island and keep her world intact, she discovers a devastating secret about her mother, and the real reason her father wants to move. Soon, she begins to question all that had seemed certain in life. However, in time, Autumn discovers that she can move on through difficult times and changes in life, and still remain close to the people she loves.

Killingsworth artfully shows that honesty between parents and children is essential. Though Autumn, readers see that often the only choice we have in difficult situations is how we choose to deal with unchangeable circumstances.
Down the Yukon by Will Hobbs
HarperCollins, 2001, 193 pp., $15.95
Adventure/Historical Fiction
ISBN: 0-688-17472-8

In this sequel to Jason's Gold, the Hawthorn brothers are now successful lumber mill owners/operators in Dawson City, Canada. Ethan, Jason's brother, is tricked into boxing the former British champion. In a brutal fight, Ethan wins, but his new notoriety changes his attitude. Ethan eventually loses the lumber mill by drunkenly signing a document which gives up his rightful ownership.

Jason and his love, Jamie, decide to participate in a great race down the Yukon, the prize money to be used to buy back the mill. Their adventurous trip is full of danger from nature's forces, the river, and Donner, a contestant in the race who is the man who tricked Ethan into signing away the lumber mill.

This is a wonderful romantic story, supported by Hobb's careful historical and background research. Down the Yukon depicts an accurate portrayal of this time in history, one to be enjoyed by readers of historical fiction.

Hurry Freedom: African-Americans in Gold Rush California by Jerry Stanley
Crown Publishers, 2000, 86 pp., $18.95
Biography

In the heart of Gold Rush, California, African-American entrepreneur Mifflin Gibbs established a successful commercial business. In this biography, we experience through Gibbs' eyes the struggle to succeed in an area known to have been prejudiced against African-Americans, and, along the way, see in vivid detail elements of Gibbs' day-to-day life. We accompany him in his interactions, from employers to fellow merchants to those he helped through his philanthropy and his role in promoting civil rights.

Gibbs' story—he went on to earn a law degree and be elected as a City Judge in Little Rock, Arkansas, and serve as a United States Ambassador to Madagascar—is well-told. With rich narrative and historical photographs and illustrations, the author paints a portrait of the Gold Rush Era, of race and relations during the latter half of the 19th century, and especially of Gibbs, whose frustrations and triumphs will touch all who read about his life and times.

This Side of Paradise by Steven L. Layne

High schooler Jack Barrett's father has an inherent drive for perfection. He works for a mysterious Eden Corporation, and his is forcibly relocated to Paradise, a village that is literally owned by Eden's CEO. There, Jack unwittingly uncovers a secret plot that threatens the lives of everyone he loves.

As Jack delves further into the secrets of this remote village, he learns to what lengths his father and fellow villagers are willing to go to achieve perfection. Soon, Jack is confronted with an ethical dilemma - does he hide the terrible secret in this Utopian universe and risk alienating his father, or does he expose the secret and reveal to the world the depths and depravity of this sinister world?

In a fast-paced, action-packed plot, Layne raises ethical questions about the drive for perfection and the pacing of technological advances being made by our society. Layne exposes the deficits of a Utopian society with a unique and alarming twist that adolescent readers - especially young readers who like their adventure stories laden with science fiction - will particularly enjoy. Engaging characters, witty humor, and page-turning plot make for an exciting read.

The time is 1968 and the place is Moon, Texas. Eleven-year-old Jaynell Lambert, a tomboy at heart, is full of dreams and boyish playfulness - especially as she climbs into abandoned cars in Bailey's Automobile Salvage, pretending to drive motionlessly. Life, though, takes on new meaning when her aging grandfather comes to live with them upon the death of their grandmother. Jaynell watches over her saddened grandfather, hiding his depressed, strange behavior, and trying to avoid his going to a nursing home. Grandpa impulsively purchases a Cadillac, taking Jaynell driving, and even, letting her learn how to drive - while her youngest, more girlish sister, Racine, dances in the car's headlights.

Sadly, Grandpa dies of a heart attack while driving, leaving Jaynell and her family to adjust to still another loss, and to cope with Grandpa's quirky past and the financial security that he has provided for them - including real dancing lessons for Racine.

Younger readers will enjoy this sensitive story of life in a rural Southern town which manages to teach "true values" without being preachy.
