The Running Hokies

CHARGE, ATTACK. Sea breeze means much to a Virginia Tech football team, but this is a Virginia Tech football team which has little reason to fear a Virginia wind. The Hokies' dependence on the running game is no secret, and the fact that the Hokies are the leaders of the ACC in total rushing yards is not news.

Why He Wears No. 2 Jersey

BOSTON UNIVERSITY fans against the Hokies had no idea what number former Hokie halfback Gene Page had worn before he died. However, there is no mistaking the number of the man who has been Virginia Tech's leading rusher.

Hokies 'Rush' to 37-7 Win

Senior Fullback Barry D. (Doogie) Davis, who has been the Hokies' top rusher for the past three seasons, scored two touchdowns and gained 175 yards against VMI. The 5-foot-11, 220-pound senior also caught a 60-yard pass from quarterback Donny Smith in the second quarter. The Hokies, who were shut out by VMI last season, 21-0, now lead the ACC in total offense and total defense.

Hokies Shake Loose, Pound Keydets, 37 to 7

Virginia Tech's defense dominated, holding VMI to 227 total yards and 33 rushing. The Hokies' offense, led by quarterback Donny Smith, gained 485 total yards and scored on its first two possessions.
