Virginia Tech Meets Radford College In Soccer Match Wed.

BLACKSBURG—Coach Jerry Cheynet’s Virginia Tech soccer team take on the Radford Highlanders at Radford tomorrow, hopeful of ending a losing streak that saw them shut out by both Navy and Randolph-Macon over the weekend.

The Middies turned the trick Friday with a 4-0 decision, scoring one goal in the first half and three in the second, upping their record to 3-1.

Navy outshot Tech 21-8.

Randolph-Macon hosted the Hokies Sunday and came on stronger than Navy offensively. R-M scored with six minutes left in the game to win 1-0 but outshot Tech 33-14 in shots on goal and had an unstoppable goalie. Of Tech’s 14 shots, 12 were headed into the net until the goalie stopped or deflected them.

Cheynet said “We had a good performance by goalie Ken Nelson who had 13 saves.” He added “The defense has been playing respectfully but it becomes discouraging when the offense doesn’t score.”

The Hokies are now 1-3 with an opening win over West Virginia Tech and a loss to Eastern Mennonite on the slate before the weekend’s games.
