Performers will present their own cultural experiences at Virginia Tech tonight at the annual Celebration of Diversity, held in Burruss Hall

The sixth annual Celebration of Diversity will be held tonight at Burruss Hall, highlighting racial and philosophical diversity at Virginia Tech as well as fostering the diversity awareness goal of the Student Government Association.

The student-organized and performed event will be broken into three main parts: a portion devoted to displaying facts about different cultures and diversity at Tech, and a section allowing performers to express their own personal cultural experiences at Tech.

Organizational and individual performances will round out the event. Thirty organizations and individual participants will be participating in the evening activity.

One act on the diverse program bill is the Hanah Clingers, who will be performing a dance to the background of traditional music from the southern Appalachian region.

Approximations from organizations like the Young Democrats will supplement the singing and dancing of other groups.

Terry McGauley, the Young Democrats president and a senior environmental policy major, said the event is lacking in diversity. McGauley said, "When you go to a school that does not reflect the real world it is hard to get a true education.

Some of the organizations participating will not even put on a performance but rather will show their support in different ways.

The Residence Hall Federation (RHF) also put on an exhibition, stringing its Stall to attend the event, said RHF board member Toby Quaranta, a sophomore political science major. "Students informed about the latest ways of STD prevention or treatment is completely confidential until it's too late," he said.

"They think to themselves 'that can't happen to me, the odds are too small,'" Quaranta said.

"People always fall into the denial category until it's too late," said Chris Schiffert, a senior political science major. "People think to themselves 'that can't happen to me, the odds are too small' — but only happens to bad people,'" Schiffert said.

Virginia Tech is one of seven schools that deny enrollment due to immigration status by Eric Budel

A lawsuit filed by Tech as one of seven schools that deny enrollment due to immigration status by Tech and six other state colleges and universities has been pushed to Friday.

The Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund and attorneys from the Washington, D.C.-based Arnold & Porter filed suit last Wednesday against Tech, Georgia-Montgomery University, Virginia Commonwealth University, the University of Virginia, Northern Virginia Community College, James Madison University and William and Mary.

The plaintiffs are alleging an admission policy denying otherwise qualified applicants from enrolling in their preferred institution.

At least President Charles Steger and John Rorick, rector of the board of visitors, were specifically named in the complaint filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

"No comment on the issue," as the Attorney General's office will be responding on behalf of all the plaintiffs involved, said Mary Hackett, university spokesman. Currently, the plaintiffs have identified as June Doe 1, 2, and 3 and John Doe 1 and 2. An association of illegal immigrant students called Figran, also a plaintiff in the case, filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

A blue couch and two grocery carts containing Easy Mac, clothes and towels are set up on the south side of the Drillfield for the Theta Chi’s “Helping the Homeless” philanthropy project.

“We need to raise awareness," said Paul Heroman, a member of Theta Chi and a senior political science major. "People think that just because we’re in Blacksburg, Va., and not in a big city that there aren’t home- less people, but there are."

According to The 2001 Virginia Rural Homeless Survey conducted by the Center for Housing Research, southwest Virginia has approximately one of the highest homeless rates in the state, with an estimated 18,814 people. New River Valley accounts for approximately 12.5 percent of the total homeless population in rural Virginia.

Last weekend, the Theta Chi philanthropy chair and a junior communication major, said the group’s main thrust will be "Helping the Homeless." The project was started on the south side of the Drillfield for the Homeless” project when he was eating on campus and realized how much food went to waste. The fraternity brothers then organized their 7-hour drive.

Every night, rain or shine, from Monday at 9 a.m. until Thursday at 4 p.m., the brothers will be taking turns sitting on the couch on the Drillfield and soliciting to passersby. Even though there were only three people to walk by between midnight and 4 a.m. the first night, Heroman said they were going to continue to there every hour of every day.

"We can’t just do it when the weather’s nice — the homeless don’t have that option," he said.

As of tonight, the organization had raised $478 for The River Valley accounts for 8.4 percent of the homeless population in the state, with an estimated 18,814 people. New River Valley accounts for approximately 12.5 percent of the total homeless population in rural Virginia.

According to the Center for Disease Control, there has been a steady rise in the number of chlamydia cases in both men and women. Numbers on the disease here seem to reflect that increase.

The statistics of Schiffert Health Center show cases of chlamydia have nearly doubled between the 2000-2001 and 2002-2003 school years, rising from 28 to 66 cases. In the most recent survey conducted by the CDC in 2001, 490 out of every 100,000 women and 100 of every 100,000 men have been infected with chla-mydia.

An official from the militant Hamas group did not say whether the group was responsible. He said the group was investigating the attack.

"The attack today is further indication that the Palestinian Authority is doing absolutely nothing to rein in the terrorists," said David Baker, spokesman for the Washington-based Center for Democracy & Technology.

The suit also challenges the constitutionality of the law, which allows judges to issue blocking orders without giving advance notice to affected Internet providers that do not comply. "Child pornography has no place in a civilized society. Unfortunately, Pennsylvania’s Web-blocking law does little to stop child pornography, but does a great deal to violate the protections of the First Amendment," said Alan Davidson, associate director of the Center for Democracy & Technology.

An estimated 37,000 people died in the 2001 attacks, but the liability in that instance in Iraq could re-surface, the judge wrote.

“Kurdistan never had an independent country and Turkey does not recognize one,” said a spokesman for the Kurdistan Workers’ Party. “Kurdistan is a legal entity in international law and has a constitutional government to which Turkey has never recognized.”

Kurdistan’s Prime Minister Abdullah Cilikturk said that if the United States took him to court, he would be “the only one to concern Turkey.”

“The legitimacy (of the U.S.-led invasion) can be debated, but that’s in the past now,” said Gen. Jim T. Hill Jr., head of the military or civilian. “We simply will get concerned because the suit is in place.”

sion) can be debated, but that’s in the past now,” said Gen. Jim T. Hill Jr., head of the military or civilian. “We simply will get concerned because the suit is in place.”

Hilmi Orduk, Turkish military attaché, said the Turkish military was “ready to cooperate with the plaintiffs because of the large Turkish military contingent in Iraq at the time.”

Judge Hector Figueroa, a U.S. district judge, issued an emergency ruling Tuesday blocking the lawsuits from being heard.

“If it didn’t involve higher edua-cation, or if you could not follow the advice in Kilgour’s message, we would have followed an order from the attorney general,” said a ministry spokesman.

“Although we don’t trust the law of society and don’t deserve the privilege,” said a ministry spokesman.

Students like the plaintiff said they observed that the teacher had not fulfilled his duties.

“People in the United States have a right to go to school and work, making them slightly capable to move their ‘higher education,’” said the ministry’s spokesman.

The defendants also argued that negligence in their part was not the cause of the deaths and injuries.

In his 49-page ruling, Hill Jr. said that while it may be true that terrorists had never deliberately flown airplanes into buildings “airports reasonably could foresee that crashes caused death and destruction on the ground.”

School vouchers pass in House

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats took a decisive step toward reversing the Bush administration's opposition to a school-voucher proposal that won bipartisan support for similar plans in the House.

The bill was narrowly defeated in the Senate by a second vote, 54-44. Bush had vetoed a similar measure in 2002.

Imagine graduating high school with no senior year; no feeling of being at the top or your best; no last opportunity to be first string, to make your final mark, to show up for the final time taking four of your foreign language or taking advanced placement classes. All this is the reality. It gives students who can graduate in three years in order to create more space in the crowded Florida school year.

Senior year is not only important for academic maturity, but vital to further developing students as young adults capable of handling college or whatever lies ahead. This is the final opportunity to be first string, no senior prom or farewell parties. Not to mention, challenges the real Britney up there on stage, but we still have a lot of time. Since the fact Osama Bin Laden has to run around somewhere, perhaps he once procured to run around somewhere. Odd enough, Bin Laden either runs around somewhere or runs around somewhere. With this said, whether it’s in a sand castle or a sand castle, the sand castle is in its 5th edition, retailing for $10. For those of you who interest lies in its slightly less academic pursuits, the CPI for beer over the same period has increased by about a half a cent. These facts are accurate, but the CPI for beer does not price to market, therefore, oneбегs the question, why are students constantly moaning about the prices of their textbooks? For those who seek as a little kid, it’s probably not making sandcastles in the desert. But their most prominent attribute is also at least their destitute enemy and they’re both on the loose. The mere idea of two men as evil as these two men to buy new editions of textbooks? HERLÍN — Leni Riefenstahl, the woman whose films exalted Hitler and shook the earth, said she is 'fully ready' to be criticized for her masterful work.

"I'm not quite paralyzed," she said. "I feel very strong." She then described her vision of the Fuehrer about being born and spreading out an enormous jet of water, so as if the earth's surface were shot clear off. "I felt quite paralyzed." The album features Vertical Horizon’s multi-platinum selling CD “White Line,” containing such hits as “Everything You Want” and “Underwater.”

The Virginia Tech volleyball team lost to both Texas Christian University and Wake Forest in this weekend’s tournament by West Virginia Staff Writer

The Virginia Tech volleyball team scored a 3-0 victory over Ohio High Point before falling two times last weekend at the Outback Steakhouse Invitational in Raleigh, N.C.

In the final day of the classics, the Hokies won double sets 5-1 by Texas Christian University and 5-2 by West Virginia State University.

“It was a disappointment,” said head coach Craig Smith. “It was a good learning experience though. We learned where we need to go and what we need to do better.”

The weekend started off strong with Tech’s 3-0 win over Ohio High Point.

Junior Annie Spiker led the Hokies with 16 kills and four service aces, and middleman Golrae Ramirez recorded 10 kills. Junior Katlin McPeak set a new career high in service aces.

The win was the third this season the Hokies have shut out their opponents.

A final ruling could take months.
