STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Swedish police arrested a man Thursday in a sport utility vehicle early in a multi-pronged attack to combat infectious diseases, including anthrax, tularemia, hemorrhagic fever and smallpox.

The institute's entire mission is to focus on infectious disease research, said Dr. James Halpert, a professor of bacteriology and immunology at the University of Virginia. "We're going to do research to develop a vaccine for the disease tularemia."

Some students chose to sit on stairs possibly because they were tardy and didn't want to interrupt class to get to a chair, he said.

The reality is that the university has cut and the number of students in classes has increased.

"We will be conducting our own review to be sure we don't have any similar situations," Hincker said.

"I'm not even admitted into most academic institutions," said Dr. James Halpert, a professor of bacteriology and immunology at the University of Virginia. "We're going to do research to develop a vaccine for the disease tularemia."

VIRGINIANS brace for hurricane

• Virginia Beach officials put out a local declaration of emergency and plan to open shelters for victims Wednesday

by Sonja Barrie Associated Press

NORTOLK — Coastal residents boarded up windows Tuesday and contemplated leaving to avoid weakening but still dangerous Hurricane Isabel. Virginia Beach-based religious broadcaster Pat Robertson asked his Christian Broadcasting Network viewers to pray with him so that God would put a “wall of protection” around the city and the eastern part of the state.

"In the name of Jesus, we reach out our hand in faith and we command that storm to cease its forward motion to the north and to turn to the east and out to sea," Robertson prayed on “The 700 Club.”

The Virginia Beach officials put out a local declaration of emergency and planned to open a limited number of shelters late Wednesday. Residents and business owners on Chincoteague Island on Virginia’s Eastern Shore boarded up or taped windows as some residents prepared to leave voluntarily.

"I have two stories, and people are just breaking out, said Carl Polk, manager of Deiters’ Southern Restaurant. “They’re panicking, saying we’re going to get it really bad. I’ve never seen the town boarded up like it is today.”

U.S. Iraq militants crossing Syrian border

WASHINGTON (AP) — Syria is allowing militants in Iraq to kill U.S. soldiers and is aggressively seeking to acquire and develop chemical, biological and nuclear weapons, a senior Bush administration official said Tuesday.

In addition, he said Syria continues to support organizations the United States lists as terrorist groups.

John Bolton, undersecretary of state for arms control, told a House hearing the United States was trying to change Syria's behavior through diplomatic means and urged lawmakers to let the effort run its course before passing trade restrictions and other measures.

After testifying to the House International Relations Committee's subcommittee on the Middle East and Central Asia, Bolton left for Moscow, where he is to talk with the Russians about proliferation of nuclear technology and to hold talks with the State Department deputy spokesman, Adam Ere尽可能.

Secretary of State Colin Powell said Syria was not cooperating with U.S. demands to end support for the Islamic militant group, which Washington labels as a terrorist organization, and to withdraw its troops from Lebanon.

But Powell saw hope in the fact that U.S. lawmakers were moving forward to allow the United States to use force in a conflict and that lawmakers were considering new sanctions against Syria.

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal appeals court Tuesday will consider whether to re-examine its three-judge panel's posthumous upholding of the California recall election.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals asked California election officials and recall proponents to file briefs by Wednesday as the court prepares to rehear the case.

For now, the election on California's top elections official said he would appeal Monday's ruling, which said the court could not make a decision out of the appeals court record after Wednesday afternoon on whether they want all 11 judges on the appeals court to review the case.

For now, the election on California's top elections official said he would appeal Monday's ruling, which said the court could not make a decision out of the appeals court record after Wednesday afternoon on whether they want all 11 judges on the appeals court to review the case.

The three-judge panel had ruled Monday that six counties' planned use of punch-card ballots in the CA-17 vote — the same kind used in the contested 2000 presidential election in Florida — would disenfranchise thousands of Californians.

The court did not set a new date for the recall, but backed a suggestion from the American Civil Liberties Union that ballots be held during the March 2 primary.

By that time, the six counties, including Los Angeles, will have replaced the mandated federal court order stemming from separate litigation over California's top elections official's decision to change that did not relax regulations.

This Thursday will be the first time Aggies coach Dennis Franchione competes against Virginia Tech coach Charles Odum.

"I've heard great things about Virginia Tech's coach's name," Beamer said, regarding the relative coaching record of the Virginia Tech's conference rival.

"I believe that Mr. Webber,as the leader of the investor group, would be happy to have his financial commitment deferred," said Webber's attorney.

ATLANTA — AOL Time Warner agreed to sell the Atlanta Hawks and Thrashers for $250 million to a group that includes the son-in-law of former owner Ted Turner.

The company is getting rid of the NBA and NHL teams as part of an effort to pay down $24 billion in debt. Turners is the founder of Time Warner and the company is the largest in the world. Turner is the owner of many entertainment companies, including CNN and Warner Bros. Pictures.

For the next two seasons at TCU, Franchione guided Hogs to fourth place in the Big 12 conference standings and a third-place finish in the Razorbacks National Bowl.

While he does not have first hand experience of the Horned Frogs current coach or his team, he says he has seen some touch downs before. "We've won our first two games and the Horned Frogs of Texas A&M is certainly a factor," Franchione said.

"I think there's any questions about his qualifications," Franchione said at a news conference Tuesday.

Turner and the three teams before Turner Broadcasting merged with Time Warner, are co-owned by Aol and News Corporation. In turn, the company has 25% of Aol's stock.

Barnhart leads soccer team to success

by Susan Siddarth
Staff Writer

Four years ago, Emily Barnhart started her college soccer career at Virginia Tech. As a freshman, she never imagined she would be playing at the level she is today.

It is one Barnhart’s senior year, and Tech’s women’s soccer team chose the self-described team player as captain. “I’m so proud that my team had the faith in one to choose me to help guide them,” Barnhart said. “Since we are all working for the same goal our confidence in us helps me lead them.”

Barnhart grew up in Columbus, Ohio, and has been playing soccer for 15 years, but she started playing competitively at the age of nine. During high school, she was honored with all-league and all-district awards, most valuable offensive player and she was named All-Central Catholic League four years in a row.

As a Hokie freshman, Barnhart started in 17 of the 18 games she played. She recorded five goals and five assists and led the Hokies with 15 total points scored. In her second year, Barnhart played in all 20 games, starting 14.

She tallied three goals and two assists. During her third season with Tech, Barnhart started all 18 games at offensive midfield. She scored a team-high seven goals and led the team again in assists with 20. She also received honors as a Big East Academic All-Star-Low as well as a month into the 2003 season, Barnhart has contributed two goals for the Hokies, including one in the 3-0 victory against James Madison University.

“Beating (NC) was a really big accomplishment for our team,” she said. “It’s the first time we’ve beat them in two years, but I think the team’s biggest accomplishment is still yet to come.”

Barnhart added her second goal during Tech’s match against Wake Forest University. To put the Hokies within one of the Eagles.
