by Aaron Blackwell

Six Virginia Tech students were arrested over the weekend, and each was charged with possession of marijuana.

These Tech students were arrested and charged after a police officer stopped them on Wall Street for a traffic infraction, said Lt. Wendell Pinchum of the Tech Police Department.

Andrew Chiu was driving at the time and Kaamil Khan and Ryan Murphy were involved in this incident, Pinchum said.

All six received summonses to appear in court and were released, he said.

Both cases involved small amounts of marijuana.

Pinchum said these cases are routine for Tech police.

The maximum penalty for possession of marijuana is a $500 fine or up to 12 months in jail if convicted, said Pat McCall, deputy clerk for Montgomery General District Court.

Marijuana will usually go through the Virginia Alcohol Safety Action Program, which educates people about drug and alcohol abuse and safe driving.

"It's highly competitive," said Morgan Roth, vice president of public affairs for RFB&D. "Students must maintain a high GPA, show involvement in the community and demonstrate leadership, and Teresa and her dad had no means to read their stories or hold their research.

This week, 348 students had registered for the organization's efforts to actively recruit people with disabilities, the university was presented the annual Oak Lane Trick-or-Treat last night.

"We see a lot of faces from around Blacksburg," said Zach Franz, a member of Sigma Chi and Pi Kappa Phi each converted their buildings into haunted houses.

"It's basically a little maze for kids to run through," said Franz. "It's our attempt to do something for kids to go to."

Franz said his organization is proud of what the Greek community has done for us because all of the organizations were involved in this event. Pinchum said.

Six-year-old Dwight Brady, dressed as SpongeBob SquarePants, fishes for candy at the annual Oak Lane Trick-or-Treat.

Little Dwight Brady and his parents were the first to trick-or-treat during the annual Oak Lane Trick-Or-Treat event.

The police were on hand to help ensure everyone's safety.

While the entire event was put together by Fraternity and Sorority members, the Montgomery County Sheriff's Office sent the email to the Tech community, which was also published in the New River Current.

"We are trying to bring it out in different places to get more people involved. We are always trying to get more people involved. We have more people involved and we are trying to make the event bigger."

"We took money out of our own pocket just to get the extra mile," Saucedo said.

"It's basically a little maze for kids to run through," said Franz. "It's our attempt to do something for kids to go to."

Franz said his organization is proud of what the Greek community has done for us because all of the organizations were involved in this event. Pinchum said.

Six-year-old Dwight Brady, dressed as SpongeBob SquarePants, fishes for candy at the annual Oak Lane Trick-or-Treat.

Little Dwight Brady and his parents were the first to trick-or-treat during the annual Oak Lane Trick-Or-Treat event.

The police were on hand to help ensure everyone's safety.

While the entire event was put together by Fraternity and Sorority members, the Montgomery County Sheriff's Office sent the email to the Tech community, which was also published in the New River Current.

"We are trying to bring it out in different places to get more people involved. We are always trying to get more people involved. We have more people involved and we are trying to make the event bigger."

"We took money out of our own pocket just to get the extra mile," Saucedo said.
Race war prophet pledges guilt

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Calif. (AP) — A 45-year-old man who stood accused of terrorism and ammunition and told police a war was coming pledged his guilt Wednesday to moderate- nongun weapons changes, saying he had been demonized by the media and could never expect a fair trial.

Lord Wherlock spent nearly four months in jail after police seized gunpowder, gone and ammunition from his home. He was arrested Wednesday, telling Judge Lynn K. Stewart that he had been arrested on a warrant "begging as a two-dollar bill," he said.

11 Russian coal miners rescued

NOVOSHAKHTINSK, Russia (AP) — Blinking in the dust, 11 of 15 coal miners who were trapped in a deep shaft in southern Russia were brought to the surface Wednesday. One man had died long to live when help arrived.

The state, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statute, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida lawmakers, gave Bush the authority to order the statue, dubbed "Terri's Law" by Florida laws...
Nick Pascale

Among the corporate scandals involving Tyco, WorldCom and Enron, to name a few, it is no wonder the Securities and Exchange Commission have their hands full uncovering unethical management and hedge fund managers.

The recent headlines have been away, trading after markets close, and exploitative, and these activities are available because of foreign markets, the shareholders to these funds have found themselves to be losers.

"By letting the funds get away with trading after market close, despite the arbitrage opportunities available because of foreign markets, the shareholders in these funds have found themselves to be the losers."

Bryan's accuser should face equal coverage

The key takeaway from this case is that even though Beamer's actions were unprofessional and did not belong on the football field, it is not ok for Beamer to smack the players, especially the young ones, when they act up. Beamer should be reprimanded for his actions.

Kathy Lynch

Letters to the Editor

"It is time for companies that ruin the lives of the poor and pay no regard to a rapidement changing environment to pay up."

Nick Pascale in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Multinational corporations need to take responsibility

Kate Lynch

Letters to the Editor

The victims. This case could set the important precedent that clouds can have multidimensional corporations financially responsible for the consequences of their actions.

Jim Kennedy in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Bryant's accuser should face equal coverage

» "You should be clear that there were false accusations (41 percent). These main factors were the motivation behind these false claims: revenge, a desire for attention and the need for an alibi."

Jim Kennedy

Letters to the Editor

The legal system seems to be behind the curve again. You can't get away with it anymore.

Bryan's accuser should face equal coverage

Jim Kennedy in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Bryant's accuser should face equal coverage

Nick Pascale

Among the corporate scandals involving Tyco, WorldCom and Enron, to name a few, it is no wonder the Securities and Exchange Commission have their hands full uncovering unethical management and hedge fund managers.

The recent headlines have been away, trading after markets close, and exploitative, and these activities are available because of foreign markets, the shareholders to these funds have found themselves to be losers.

"By letting the funds get away with trading after market close, despite the arbitrage opportunities available because of foreign markets, the shareholders in these funds have found themselves to be the losers."

Bryan’s accuser should face equal coverage

The key takeaway from this case is that even though Beamer’s actions were unprofessional and did not belong on the football field, it is not ok for Beamer to smack the players, especially the young ones, when they act up. Beamer should be reprimanded for his actions.

Kathy Lynch in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Multinational corporations need to take responsibility

Kate Lynch

Letters to the Editor

"It is time for companies that ruin the lives of the poor and pay no regard to a rapide changing environment to pay up."

Nick Pascale in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Bryant’s accuser should face equal coverage

Jim Kennedy in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.

Bryant’s accuser should face equal coverage

Nick Pascale

Among the corporate scandals involving Tyco, WorldCom and Enron, to name a few, it is no wonder the Securities and Exchange Commission have their hands full uncovering unethical management and hedge fund managers.

The recent headlines have been away, trading after markets close, and exploitative, and these activities are available because of foreign markets, the shareholders to these funds have found themselves to be losers.

"By letting the funds get away with trading after market close, despite the arbitrage opportunities available because of foreign markets, the shareholders in these funds have found themselves to be the losers."

Bryan’s accuser should face equal coverage

The key takeaway from this case is that even though Beamer’s actions were unprofessional and did not belong on the football field, it is not ok for Beamer to smack the players, especially the young ones, when they act up. Beamer should be reprimanded for his actions.

Kathy Lynch in the opinion editor for the Collegiate Times.
Students congregated in Deet’s Place Wednesday night as the Alternative Sounds committee of the Virginia Tech Union presented Open Mic Night. The members of the audience sat and enjoyed cups of coffee or bites of food while observing the array of talent performed by their fellow students. There were approximately 70 people around to view the live music.

“Being only my second public performance, I was pretty nervous, but I had a lot of fun,” said Terry Steffens, a freshman building construction major. Steffens excited the crowd with his James Taylor and Jack Johnson covers. Most of the entertainers seemed to leave the stage with smiles and self-satisfaction. The songs were split between originals and covers to add an enjoyable slate of talents.

Chris Minton started the night with some original songs on his acoustic guitar. He then continued on to cover a Cat Stevens tune, which seemed to spark the crowd’s approval. Josh Harrington followed him to play some of his own songs as well. One of the more interesting acts included a performer playing a book to demonstrate rhythm. He was able to keep an upbeat tempo and sing along to produce a fascinating routine. The crowd watched in amazement as the musicians expressed themselves in a variety of manners.

“Music is a form of expression,” said Pam Divine, a junior communication major. “It’s great to see how many talented musicians there are here in Blacksburg. For them to be able to come play in front of a crowd is wonderful.”

WUVT, Virginia Tech’s student-run radio station, was able to broadcast live from the event for the very first time. This was an added thrill for the new performers, as well as a great way to advertise and get future participants involved. Open Mic Night hosts different musicians with various styles, but is also open to permitting other forms of expression and creativity.

“We put on the Open Mic Night in order to allow students to showcase their talents,” Jacie Roberts, director of Alternative Sounds, said. “Although lately it has been mostly musicians, we welcome diversity in the talents and invite anything from poetry readings to comedy acts.”

Although Open Mic Night is held the last Wednesday of every month with free admittance, students may buy raffle tickets at the door for $1. Some of the prizes last night included an All American Rejects CD and assorted hats.

The audience adored the free stickers, mouse pads and lighters given out at the door. All raffle ticket money went to the VTU in order to raise money for future events.

Coffee, music are perks at Open Mic Night by Stephanie Stultz Staff Writer

Students congregated in Deet’s Place Wednesday night as the Alternative Sounds committee of the Virginia Tech Union presented Open Mic Night. The members of the audience sat and enjoyed cups of coffee or bites of food while observing the array of talent performed by their fellow students. There were approximately 70 people around to view the live music.

“Being only my second public performance, I was pretty nervous, but I had a lot of fun,” said Terry Steffens, a freshman building construction major. Steffens excited the crowd with his James Taylor and Jack Johnson covers. Most of the entertainers seemed to leave the stage with smiles and self-satisfaction. The songs were split between originals and covers to add an enjoyable slate of talents.

Chris Minton started the night with some original songs on his acoustic guitar. He then continued on to cover a Cat Stevens tune, which seemed to spark the crowd’s approval. Josh Harrington followed him to play some of his own songs as well. One of the more interesting acts included a performer playing a book to demonstrate rhythm. He was able to keep an upbeat tempo and sing along to produce a fascinating routine. The crowd watched in amazement as the musicians expressed themselves in a variety of manners.

“Music is a form of expression,” said Pam Divine, a junior communication major. “It’s great to see how many talented musicians there are here in Blacksburg. For them to be able to come play in front of a crowd is wonderful.”

WUVT, Virginia Tech’s student-run radio station, was able to broadcast live from the event for the very first time. This was an added thrill for the new performers, as well as a great way to advertise and get future participants involved. Open Mic Night hosts different musicians with various styles, but is also open to permitting other forms of expression and creativity.

“We put on the Open Mic Night in order to allow students to showcase their talents,” Jacie Roberts, director of Alternative Sounds, said. “Although lately it has been mostly musicians, we welcome diversity in the talents and invite anything from poetry readings to comedy acts.”

Although Open Mic Night is held the last Wednesday of every month with free admittance, students may buy raffle tickets at the door for $1. Some of the prizes last night included an All American Rejects CD and assorted hats.

The audience adored the free stickers, mouse pads and lighters given out at the door. All raffle ticket money went to the VTU in order to raise money for future events.
A full breakfast menu with all your favorites!

Breakfast Sandwiches  Omelettes  French Toast  Pancakes
Plus selected appetizers!  Chicken Fingers  Wings  Cheese Stix and more...

Thursday and Friday Nights From Midnight until 3aM!
Can Hokies forget West Virginia?

by Rajan Naravani
Sports Editor

Last Wednesday night in Morgantown, W. Va., the entire nation tuned in to watch ESPN’s broadcast of what turned out to be a good old-fashioned bloodbath when the West Virginia Mountaineers ran over the Virginia Tech Hokies 28-7.

The Mountaineers did everything the Hokies were known for doing: running the football effectively on offense, playing sound defense and special teams and forcing opportunistic turnovers. In essence, they gave the Hokies a taste of their own medicine, and when Tech could take no more, they turned another doz straight to their

Many argue that the low score was one thing that happened since 2001 when a single point in the entire game — the only point of levity during the second half of the game — the Mountaineers did summarize Tech’s lack of composure for the entire game. The offense did not score a single touchdown all night. The offense did not score a single point in the entire game — the only point of levity during the second half of the game.

In his Tuesday afternoon press conference in front of the local media, coach Beamer looked perhaps the most uncomfortable, and even dejected, in recent memory. He joked about how his team’s discipline and was penalized 13 times for the West Virginia Mountaineers did nothing the way they were expected to do. They didn’t play like a golf game in which he birdies the top nine and bogies the back nine (refer to Tech’s recent trend of stumbling during the second half of the game). But that may have been the only point of levity during the conference. Beamer admitted that the loss to the Mountaineers was among the toughest losses he’s ever had to get over.

He looked extremely uncomfortable when having to address the issue of the Trojans’ defense. “Everything seemed to be working,” he said. “I don’t think it’s more about being focused and letting that lose go.”

“I think our players will accept that challenge,” Beamer said. “I think we’ll see (about the team’s confidence) some things this week.”

The players, conversely, seemed ready to be upbeat. That’s what the Hokies need to show this Saturday. At the time, doctors projected the recovery time at six to 10 weeks. If Vick doesn’t play until Dec. 7, his rehab will have lasted 10 weeks.